

EC English Instructor Studied Opera Abroad

Adjectives and opera have nothing in common unless you happen to be an English teacher who sings. Frederick Milstein, El Camino College instructor, started his dual career singing.

In 1956 he traveled to Europe for the purpose of studying music at the Vienna State Academy. While there the instructor was chosen to sing the baritone solo in the world premiere of Egon Lustgarten's "Song of Nome." After his performance he was awarded a scholarship for the next year to study under German baritone Hans Hotter.

Milstein, a graduate of UCLA, began his singing career at UCLA and LA City College in their opera workshops. While in school he appeared in musicals, operas, and Shakespearian roles.

In 1955 he was awarded the Akiba award for outstanding contribution to Jewish culture by the university religious conference division of Hillel.

Milstein received his first full year contract in the opera house of Biel, Switzerland in 1959. During the year he appeared in six leading roles.

After Switzerland, he spent two seasons with the New York Opera Co. where he portrayed nine leading characters.

Milstein teaches English A and English 1A at the college. He also works with Dr. Gordon Orme in the music department and in addition is a soloist for a Wilshire Boulevard temple. Since 1956 he has been a musical correspondent for the San Francisco Chronicle.
